TICKLED PINK

This month's color palette, inspired by life on the shore

It's the color found in the interior of a seashell and in the sunrises and sunsets on the coast, so it's a natural choice in a beach house. "Pink is soft, refreshing, and sophisticated," says Los Angeles-based interior/textile designer and author Kathryn M. Ireland. "Never think of pink as a feminine color. It offers a unique versatility." She suggests mixing it with light grays, blues, and mauves for a pretty palette, or pairing it with a darker color for a dramatic combo that wows. Light pink is lovely in a bedroom, but Ireland recommends introducing it into other areas of your home, as well: "Paint the wainscoting in a bath light pink and pair it with simple, beautiful white tiles," she says. "It adds a fresh pop to a traditional accent."

“Pastel colors, especially pink, remind me of the sea, and coastal places like the Caribbean and Florida, because they’re so incorporated in the cultures there. Pink doesn’t compete with the ocean—it enhances it”
